Biography

Tahiti Moorea Seymour, Miss Universe Cayman Islands 2025, is a Caymanian advocate and writer whose voice carries the urgency of small islands and the ambition of a global citizen.

Her path to advocacy began not on stage, but in the fields of Costa Rica, where she worked alongside local farmers and helped build schools for children. From there, her journey continued in Washington, D.C., where she represented Egypt at the NAIMUN conference, supporting women's rights before a multinational assembly of youth leaders.

While studying Politics and International Relations at Queen Mary University of London, Tahiti carried her Caymanian perspective into one of the world's oldest democracies - the House of Commons - where she engaged policymakers in examining the future challenges facing Great Britain. She later became the only Caribbean delegate chosen for the United Nations' #Act4Food #Act4Change campaign, lending her voice to a global push for food security and sustainable futures.

Now, as Miss Universe Cayman Islands, Tahiti is redefining what it means to wear a crown. For her, the title is a megaphone for the issues that matter most to her people. Her campaign, Zero Hunger Universe, is dedicated to ending hunger by advancing global food security.

Her campaign pushes for stronger food systems, empowering local producers, and ensuring that nutritious meals reach every table. Through her advocacy, writing, and role as an ambassador, she aims to show that Caribbean nations are not only sites of beauty, but also of innovation, resilience, and vision.

Seamlessly weaving pageantry, international affairs, and cultural storytelling, Tahiti Moorea Seymour refuses to choose between glamour and impact. She is proof that island voices, though often overlooked, can carry global weight.
